Speaker

Dr. Amlan Roy is Head, Global Demographics and Pensions Research for the Investment Banking Division of Credit Suisse in London. His research on Demographics and Pensions, links those areas to economic growth, sectors, allocation, asset prices, health, migration and insurance. He advises and presents to a global cross-asset class client base that includes fund managers, hedge funds, insurance companies, pension funds, governments and central banks, across 29 countries. He extensively presents at various client and industry conferences and training seminars. He is a Senior Research Associate of London School of Economics' Financial Markets Group and UBS Pensions Research Centre. He is guest professor for London Business School's Finance department. He also addresses student audiences at different universities. In his prior role as Emerging Markets strategist, Dr. Amlan Roy developed several Global Emerging Markets models used by institutional clients as well as government treasury departments and central banks. He has served as an expert on Financial Architecture and Crises Modelling at forums of the Bank of England and HMS UK Treasury. Prior to joining Credit Suisse in 1998, Dr. Amlan Roy spent over ten years in academia at Boston University School of Management, University of Iowa Business School and the University of London (QMW College and LSE). He has had a distinguished university teaching career winning 4 teaching awards in 6 years at US business schools. He was named an ESRC Research Fellow, Ponders Fellow, a Boston University Doctoral Scholar, a Government of India National Scholar. Dr. Amlan Roy has a M.A. and Ph.D. in Financial Economics from the University of Iowa, a M.B.A. (Finance & Quant.) from the Indian Institute of Management in Ahmedabad and a B.A. with Honors in Economics and Maths from University of Delhi.
